BELLEVILLE'S OLDEST PROTESTANT CHURCH TO BE REDEDICATED TO-DAY

By a Republic Photographer, will be rededicated to-day. It is the oldest organized Protestant church in Belleville.

The remodeled St. Paul's German Free Protestant Church will be rededicated today at services which will be held in the morning and the evening.

The church is claimed to be the oldest organized Protestant church in Belleville.
and its first edifice was built in 1830 on the site of the present Franklin School.

This edifice antedated the public schools of Belleville and was used for school purposes. It was then the public school of Belleville.

Theodore Hefflinger Killed, While Cooney Buechlein and Clara Folsom Sustain Bullet Wounds.

FUSILLADE OF SHOTS FIRED.

Attempt to Inclose Stairway Between Two Flatboats Precipitates Encounter and a Pitched Battle Ensues.

A dispute over the erection of a fence separating two flatbouts at the foot of according to the statements of neighbors. Folsom and Hefflinger, who lives in the shooting.

According to the statements of neighbors. Folsom and Hefflinger, and the statements of neighbors. For some time because the time street, who was standing near the boats at the time, was shot through the groin and seriously injured. Mrs. Clara Folsom was shot through the right leg.

George Folsom, who lives in one of the boats, is under arrest at the Wyoming street station, charged with firing the shots. Frank Hefflinger, who lives in the other boat, is also held in conection with the shooting.

According to the statements of neighbors. Folsom and Hefflinger have been at outs for some time because the former built a fence separating the boats. Both families have used a stairway leading from the railroad tracks to enter the boats. It is mid Hefflinger made known his intention of building a fence around the stairway, and yesterday afternoon, with his brothers. Theodore and Fred Hefflinger, began its erection.

The men had dug three post holes near the stairway when Folsom came from his boat and commanded the men to stop work. An argument followed and it is said that Polsom dec.ared he would see that the work stopped at once.

He left the men and returned to the boat. Coming out, he had a revolver in each hand and began firing in the air. The Hefflingers left their work and ran down to the railroad tracks. Theodore Hefflinger, it is said, hegan throwing stones and bricks at Folsom. som.

Folsom then directed his pistol at the men and continued firing. The first man to fall was Cooney Beuchlein, who was standing near the Heffinger brothers. The bullet penetrated his groin and he fell to the Frank and Fred Hefflinger hastened to the boat, but Theodore remained on the tracks. It is said he called Folsom a cow-ard and dared him to ascend and fight him hand to hand. Then, it is said, Folsom pointed his revolver and fired the fatal shot. He then went into his boat and locked the doors.

he then went into his boat and locked the doors.

The shooting attracted much attention and a crowd soon gathered. Theodore Hefflinger was picked up in an unconsclous condition. The bullet had entered the left side of the breast and lodged near the heart. When the police arrived, an ambulance was summoned and he was hurried to the South Side Dispensary. He died on the operating table.

Buechieln was taken to the dispensary. Mra. Foisom complained of a pain in her leg, telling the police she had been struck by a stone. When she arrived at the dispensary it was found she had been struck by a bullet, Buechieln and the woman were removed to the City Hospital.

Eyewitnesses to the tragedy declare that Foisom was the only one who had a revolver. They say he flourished a Winchester rifle after emptying both revolvers. Foisom is an electrician and is employed by the St. Louis Transit Company.

Hefflinger is hyears old and married. The inquest will be held to-day.
